

CREDO

Our product is the work of our consultants...

We have to become the best that we can in what we do, in order to have a good product.

Our work, our product, is judged by the customer. No matter how good we think we are, the bottom line is what the customer thinks of us and our work.

Team work is the foundation of our success as individuals and together as an organization. We never put our pride and ego first. We never stop learning from each other. We support and motivate our colleagues when they need our help. There are certain limits to what each one of us can do, when we work together as a team, the sky is the limit.

When we travel to foreign customers, we are ambassadors of our company, our country and our culture. We respect the customer's culture and religion and we treat the individuals with honesty and respect.

We never stop learning. A technical professional that stops learning comes with an expiration date. Never let your ego stop you from learning because you have become good at your work. Always listen to what your team members have to say about their work no matter how young they are. In our work, the team comes first. Be always open to new ideas and new technologies. Keep learning...

Our goal is to become the best IT Service and Infrastructure Management consulting firm in South/East Europe, Middle East and Africa. Our goal is to have returning customers and be known in our markets as a quality services provider. Our goal is to enjoy what we do and do it our work with enthusiasm and 'μερακι'*

 μερακι (meraki): Greek word, means do the job with motivation and passion*
